The model features a soft, rounded silhouette of the seat and backrest. The backrest and armrests are designed as a single continuous upholstered element with a smoothly curved, arched shape.

The structure is supported by three legs — two side legs and one rear leg — all featuring a flat profile. This design solution gives the chair a contemporary character while ensuring stability.

The chair legs are made of natural oak. The wood finish, as well as the upholstery of the backrest and seat, can be selected to complement the overall interior palette — from light, natural tones to deeper, darker or more vibrant shades.

The combination of soft upholstery, natural oak and customizable finishes allows Lodi to integrate seamlessly into a variety of spaces, from private residences to restaurants, hotels and other commercial interiors.

Natural oak, plywood and elastic webbing form the reliable foundation of the chair, while the soft upholstery adds visual appeal and comfort.

Lodi naturally complements both residential and commercial spaces — dining areas, kitchens, restaurants, hotels, lounges and other interiors. With a wide range of finish and upholstery options, the model can be easily adapted to different interior concepts and stylistic solutions.
